Managing restraints is a serious matter that requires adherence to ethical standards, legal requirements, and institutional policies. This panel will discuss tactics for ensuring documentation and usage standards for restraints meet those requirements, as well as best practice habits for identifying the appropriate indications for restraints, what alternatives may be utilized in place of restraints, and the impact good stewardship of restraint usage can have on patient outcomes.

Learning Objectives:

- Discuss the different types of restraints
- Explain the indications for restraint use
- Identify alternatives to restraints usage
- Understand the legal and ethical principles to consider with restraint use

12:00 – 1:15 p.m. - LUNCH AND LEARN

Supporting Those Who Support Our Patients: The Phenomenon of Second and Third Victims

Branden Robertson, MPH, NR-P, CPHQ, CPPS, CPHRM

Senior Director of Quality and Patient Safety
Carilion Clinic

The complexities of health care delivery lead to unfortunate medical errors that are known to impact high numbers of patients each year. While most systems have processes in place to manage the patient post-event, few place the same emphasis on the second victims (staff involved in the event), and even fewer have processes in place to support the quality and patient safety professionals who must review and manage these often-difficult cases (the third victims). Supporting staff who support our patients at the front line, and behind the scenes in our quality offices should be non-negotiable.

Learning Objectives:

- Identify second and third victim phenomena
- Build a second and third victim support process
- Identify how to build safety culture by improving support to staff

1:15 – 2:15 p.m.

Poster Presentations

Poster presentations will highlight the quality improvement projects taking place in hospitals across Kentucky to reduce health care deficiencies, advance safety in health care, and improve quality outcomes.

2:15 – 2:30 p.m.

Oh No! Not More of That Fluffy Stuff!

Rich Bluni, RN

National Speaker, Coach
Huron

When we are feeling stressed and burnt out it's not because we are lacking an "intellectual skill" nor is it because we don't care enough...quite the contrary! Often we start getting burnt out because we care a lot! What if we focused on our stories? Thought about how we "start"? Talked about giving people what they need rather than what we think they need? Does that sound like "Fluffy Stuff"? Good! Because it is! In Rich's presentation, you may see that sometimes all of that "Fluffy Stuff" is exactly what you need.

Learning Objectives:

- Define and describe the power of "why" and our "stories"
- Relate and describe the value of "starting well"

- Explain and discuss the importance of using a specific approach to engagement

10:00 – 11:00 a.m.

Utilizing Lean Methodology to Improve Healthcare Processes

Jessalynn White, PharmD

Director Medication Safety
Norton Healthcare Pharmacy Services

Each day there are processes that are not optimally performed, which creates workarounds and waste. This presentation will cover how to identify a potential process improvement, simple tools to utilize when changing processes, and provide a team activity applying lean methodology.

Learning Objectives:

- Cite the benefits of applying Lean methodology
- List the different types of waste and each step of the 5S system
- Apply Lean methodology concepts to improve a health care process

11:00 – 11:15 a.m.

Integrating a Trauma-Informed Approach to Improve Outcomes for Infants with Neonatal Opioid Withdrawal Syndrome and Their Families

Lori Devlin, DO, MHA, MS

Professor of Pediatrics
University of Louisville School of Medicine

When infants are born with Neonatal Opioid Withdrawal Syndrome (NOWS), the impact on the baby's health outcomes as well as the duress that is experienced by their family and caregivers can be significant. In this session, discover an exciting new standard of care that is being initiated in the state of Kentucky which incorporates an evidence-based, trauma-informed approach in providing care to babies with NOWS and ensuring the best possible outcomes for both the infant and their caregivers.

Learning Objectives:

- Discuss how a foundation of trauma-informed care improves outcomes for infants with NOWS and their families
- Discuss the evidence which supports the use of the ESC care approach as a standard approach to care for infants with NOWS

- continued -
